U.S. FOOTBALL TEAM LOSES TO WAUCONDA

Unable to Hold Line Plunging of Heavy Wauconda Backfield

TO PLAY AT BURLINGTON

Antioch high was defeated Saturday 15 to 0 in one of the hardest games played this season. The heavy Wauconda team was too much for the light team to stop. The backfield men in the Wauconda team being especially heavy, time and again knocking out the lighter Antioch boys who tried to stop them in their rushes. Antioch's boys put up a wonderful game, but were simply outwitted and were unable to make much headway. Capt. Haley played a fine game, but was knocked out early in the game and later was forced to retire, re-entering the game in the second half.

Wauconda scored a touchdown in the first quarter after a series of line plunges that netted them small gains and a perfectly executed forward pass that brought the ball to the fifteen yard line from where the Wauconda boys shoved it over after three tries. The second quarter was a hard fought one with the ball in Antioch's territory most of the time. After several tries to put the ball over, Murphy, of Wauconda, dropped back and booted the ball over the goal post for one of the prettiest drop kicks seen on the Antioch field this year. Considering the Antioch team played this quarter without a score, it is nevertheless a great game.

With the re-entry of Haley in the second half the Antioch boys took on new life and had the Wauconda boys on the run for a while, but a fumble stopped the onrush of the boys. Shortly after this Wauconda scored their second touchdown, again failing to kick goal, making the score 15 to 0. From this time on Antioch played a great game. Wertz making a wonderful run when he made a perfect catch of a forward pass from Haley on his own 40-yard line and reached Wauconda's fifteen yard line before he was stopped. Again the superior weight of the Wauconda boys showed up and the Antioch team was unable to put it over. The visitors then carried the ball back to Antioch's ten yard line where they were stopped and the Antioch team again started a rush down the field, the feature of which was Ames' dash through the center of the line, shaking off tackler after tackler until he was stopped on Wauconda's twenty-five yard line after a gain of forty yards. The game ended shortly after this after Antioch made several futile attempts to put it over.

Marin, the new addition to the squad, went into the game the second quarter, relieving Gray, who went into the backfield. This boy is a comer for the Antioch team; several times stopping Meyers, the 170 pound halfback, without any difficulty. Both Keulman and Wertz played a great game, the ability of Sheehan in being able to get through and break up the strong interference formed for Murphy, enabling them to stop this speedy boy. Murphy is probably the fastest man seen on the Antioch field this year, but he was unable to get away from this pair of defense men, which was a fortunate thing for Antioch, for if he ever got clear there was nobody on the Antioch team that could have possibly caught this speed merchant.

PRODUCERS TO PROTECT MEMBERS

Meeting at Elgin Selects Committee to Confer With Milk Board

MEETING IS HELD TODAY

The affairs of the dairymen took a decided turn last week. The financial report of the Marketing Co. as published by the Antioch News two weeks ago, while being contended by the present executive committee of the Marketing Co. is a big improvement over affairs of the company of three months ago, is not taken by some of the milk men as a betterment of the condition of the company.

The Milk Producers have taken steps to protect the interest of the dairymen through their own organization, a meeting being held in Elgin last Friday for this purpose. Action was taken in which a committee was appointed to meet the executive committee for the purpose of providing plans for strengthening the organization.

This step is being taken as a precaution against any possible difficulty the Marketing Co. may experience in the future.

Reports are circulated that the Producers will try and take steps to protect the members of their organization who are not members of the Marketing Co. on future milk prices.

This step has been taken due to the fact that many members of the Marketing Co. are very much dissatisfied with the present condition of the company and that withdrawals from this company have assumed quite a large number.

The Antioch local, a 100% organization, shows a decided dissatisfied attitude when reports show that on August 1, 116 of its members were supporters of the Marketing Co. and in October this number had dwindled to 16.

If the attitude assumed at the Elgin meeting is carried out many members of the organization believe that proper arrangements can be planned out and action brought where the Milk Producers will be able to market milk as was attempted before the Marketing Co. was organized.

The difficulty experienced by the Milk Producers to set a price on milk has been overcome and there will be no fear of court action being taken again as at the first attempt to establish prices when sixteen members of the Milk Producers board were indicted proved disastrous to the Producers.

BOARD IS TO MEET TUESDAY

The adjourned meeting of the board to be held last Tuesday was postponed owing to the plans not being quite completed. The meeting is called for next Tuesday, Nov. 15. All property owners on Main street are urged to attend.

Mr. Russell of Waukegan was in Antioch for dinner Wednesday. He was making a tour of the proposed cement road with Mr. Lamb, district engineer for the state highway commission. Mr. Lamb was accompanied by three of his assistants. This is a very encouraging evidence of action on the part of the highway commission.

Ramson Kennicott to Speak Before Woman's Club

The Woman's club held an open meeting in the Guild hall, Monday afternoon and quite a number were present. The speaker for the afternoon was Miss Pomanatire of Waukegan, a probation officer of the juvenile court. She gave a very interesting talk on the work being accomplished in juvenile courts.

December 19th, the Woman's club have secured Ramson E. Kennicott of Evanston as the speaker. He will give a talk on Forest Preserves. Mr. Kennicott, a college graduate and an employee of the government in the forestry department is a man of wide experience in this department and is in great demand as a speaker. The Woman's club is to be congratulated in securing his service and every effort should be made to have a record attendance on that date. Previous reports of Mr. Kennicott's talks have claimed his subject as very interesting and of great educational value. As one prominent man of Evanston remarked after hearing this speaker, "I thought I was going to catch up on a little sleep, but I didn't sleep long."

According to one of the enthusiastic members of the club the lack of attendance of the meetings is to be deplored. Lack of interest is due, it is said, from rumors circulated that the affairs of the Woman's club has taken a political trend, the rumors further stating that the Woman's club is to attempt to enter the next election by trying to put one of its members on the board. This denial of its members the club and belief is expressed that this rumor possibly started through the plan to educate the women how to vote.

Woman's clubs are a needy factor in every community, but any attempt to enter politics will prove disastrous to any club. The affairs of a club should be limited to civic improvement, educational matters and general betterment of all affairs of a community and this is claimed as the sole object of the Antioch Woman's club. The present membership of the club is 60; but the officers hope to soon show a much larger membership.

Owing to the inability of the Women's Club to reach all ex-service men the Antioch News was asked to publish the following.

Dear Ex-Service Man:
As Armistice Day approached our thoughts turn naturally to you and to the great debt of gratitude we owe—a debt—that compensation or a bonus can never repay.

We want you to know that we are thinking of you at this time, as one of our very own home town boys and wondering what life is bringing to you and whether there is any thing we can do to better express our appreciation.

We are especially anxious to be of service now during this time of readjustment for so many of our wounded men and of unemployment everywhere. Do you need assistance in securing compensation, insurance or vocational training?

Won't you write us if there is any thing we can do either for yourself or any of your comrades. We will help if we can and if not we will use every influence to see that our elected representatives do every thing in their power to make conditions what they should be.

Every member of the Antioch Woman's Club, on this precious new "Honor Day" is sending you their pledge of friendship—their message of good will—their comradeship in loyalty to a great country and to a great cause.

With sincere good wishes,
Antioch Women's Club.

MARKETING CO. LEGALIZE FORMER MEETING; FOUR BOARD MEMBERS RESIGN

Holt, Rockwell, Robinson and Putman Out; Darrell, LaBarr, Lagerschulte and John Klausen Are Elected to Replace Them

BULLETIN ISSUED BY COMPANY IS MUCH DISCUSSED

Events in the affairs of the Marketing company appears to be moving fast. At a board meeting Monday action was taken to make all the previous illegal meetings legal. A vote was taken and this report says that vote showed thirteen in favor, six against and four not voting.

Tuesday the regular quarterly meeting was held at which four members of the board handed in their resignation. The resigning members being Messrs. Rockwell, Holt, Robinson and Putman. These vacancies were filled by the following: Willard Darrell of Waukegan to replace Putman; Daniel LaBarr of Lake Geneva to replace A. F. Robinson; Holt to replace Rockwell; John Klausen of Pleasant Prairie to replace Holt. The Kittle vacancy will be filled by Tom Kelly of Huntley.

It has been reported that the Marketing company is now trying to negotiate a loan of considerable proportion to finance the company and pay its debts.

The bulletin issued by the Marketing company gives out the financial statement of the company as published in the Antioch News two weeks ago. The bulletin gives review of the work accomplished by the new executive committee and presents some very good arguments for the consideration of those who have withdrawn from the company. The reports shows that the new executive committee is progressive and is getting results.

The bulletin, in an explanation of the financial report, points out that the net current assets of the company which means accounts, evaporated milk, other dairy products, supplies on hand, cash, etc., are in excess of current liabilities by $379,035. In other words this means that if the company were to cease business, call all its accounts, sell off its supplies, it would be able to pay all it owed and still have something left without in any way selling any of its real estate, machinery or plants.

Following are some of the statements made in this bulletin:

"Further in the above report, notice under items of property, that after paying off the $60,000 owed on the Charles and Chemung property at the time the statement was made, that it still leaves real estate, plants, etc., of $666,248.09. In other words, the books of the company show that there has been paid for plants, machinery, etc., the sum of $666,248.09. Very properly the question might arise as to whether property so bought, even if it cost $666,248.09, was worth the purchase price. This is a question that cannot be answered off-hand but as a general proposition it can be stated that while some plants have undoubtedly cost more money than they are really worth, other plants were bought for less money than they were really worth, so that on the average the probabilities are that the property of the company, its plants, real estate, etc., is worth somewhere near the cost or at least could not be duplicated for very much less than the amount of $666,248.09.

"Under other assets further down in the report is listed the sum of $315,318.23 of unpaid stock subscriptions. If the company were to cease business, from a creditor's standpoint this is an absolutely good asset, as every man that was worth it could be made to pay his unpaid stock subscription. As pay his unpaid stock subscription. As a practical asset the probabilities are that a considerable part of this will never be paid and it is doubtful if any management will ever attempt to collect this unpaid stock money through the process of law. The fact remains that in this financial statement this is the one asset that might be looked upon with some doubt as long as the company continues business.

"Note at the bottom of the statement the total net assets of the company, over and above debts of all kinds, is $1,194,132.04. Allowing for any large part of the stock subscriptions that will not be paid, allowing for the further fact that the valuation experts may place the value of the plants at somewhat below the $666,248.09, the apparent fact remains that after taking off these possible further deductions the company still has valuable assets of one kind and another, to the tune of around a million dollars over and above every debt it owes. With that kind of a showing, it certainly ought to reassure those who have felt that the company was insolvent.

"The wolves in sheep's clothing who have been circulating reports that the Marketing company was about to go into the hands of the receiver, will wish being father to the thought, will be considerably confounded and probably greatly disheartened by the foregoing financial statements. A re-foregoing financial statements. A re-ceiver'ship was their last hope. If they could not rule, they could at least try to ruin. The tender solicitude in which they have held the farmers who might lose their money in an attempt to create a situation where they could force a receivership, for their own revengeful ends, becomes rather amusing in view of this financial statement, for an attempt to show a company insolvent with current assets far more than current liabilities, to say nothing of more than half a million of clear plant investment would be laughed out of court.

St. Charles Makes Good

"Most of the stockholders in the Marketing company are aware of the fact that when the present executive committee took charge there was an unpaid debt of $60,000.00 to the Borden company on the purchase price of St. Charles and Chemung. While the present management might have followed the same course of the former management, when the $60,000.00, before the last payment came due, namely that of allowing the Borden company to simply take $60,000.00 off from the money that they owed the Marketing company for milk, which money the Marketing company in turn owed the farmers, thereby creating the $60,000.00 of unpaid and unpaid debts to the farmers without its being taken out of spread money. The new executive committee set about to try to overcome this situation if possible. They asked the community around St. Charles to raise $30,000.00 and made the same request of the community around Chemung. Both of these communities have responded and gone to work on the matter. St. Charles came in first and the money has been paid over and Chemung is actively at work with a good prospect of success. Hats off to St. Charles and congratulations. They were not only supporting their member of the board, Mr. Wing, in words but by deeds. Quite a contrast between the action of St. Charles local and the locals of some of the other members of the board, who under the blind, revengeful, rule or ruin leadership of those members of the board, have gone out, withholding their spread and thereby delaying that much longer the payment of just milk debts. All honor to the members of the St. Charles local. They have proved that they know the meaning of real co-operation, that it means standing by the company, not trying to stab it in the back, tear it down and destroy it simply because some local leader is peeved because he cannot have his own way.

Lowell, Mass.—"I had anemia from the time I was sixteen years old and was very irregular. If I did any housecleaning or washing I would faint and have to be put to bed. My husband thinking every minute was my last. After reading your text-book for women I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and have never felt better than I have the last two years. I can work, eat, sleep, and feel as strong as can be. Doctors told me I could never have children—I was too weak—but after taking Vegetable Compound it strengthened me so I gave birth to an eight pound boy. I was well all the time, did all my work up to the last day, and had a natural birth. Everybody who knew me was surprised, and when they ask me what made me strong I tell them with great pleasure, 'I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never felt better in my life.' Use this testimonial at any time."—Mrs. ELIZABETH SMART, 122 W. Sixth St., Lowell, Mass. This experience of Mrs. Smart is surely a strong recommendation for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is only one of a great many similar cases.

Ever Welcome Gifts

Christmas Decorations

If a Christmas were to come and go without leaving with us pincushions, pin-holders, garters and other pretty furbelows made of ribbon, it would be remembered with something of disappointment. A heart-shaped pincushion, a small bag for holding pins and a pair of ribbon-covered garters represent a few of many ribbon novelties for the holidays.

One of the easiest ways for dressing up the house at holiday time is to make lamp, candle and electric light shades or lanterns of crepe or tissue paper and tinsel. To make the small lantern pictured two rings of cardboard are covered with plain black or gold paper pasted over them. A length of light green tissue paper is folded along the center, slashed into narrow strips and pasted inside the rings. Under this a length of rose-colored crepe paper narrower than the green is pasted; this causes the strips of green paper to spread and stand out. Silver tinsel hangs from the wire handle at each side.

For the Hostess

Gifts that every woman who entertains will delight in are pictured here and they will be all the more appreciated because they are made by their donor. A set of numbers for card tables is attractive and easy to make. They are cut from white cardboard and have gummed figures in black placed on one side. On this black and white background graceful sprays of gay flowers are painted and the cards are supported by small wire holders.

Bits of Splendor

Plain wide satin ribbon and narrow fancy ribbons, with handsome metallic mounts, are used to make these elegant shopping bags. Ribbons in the richest qualities and most brilliant patterns are chosen for them and they are lined with gay and equally good silks. Besides being bits of the splendor dear to women these bags have the additional value that belongs to a gift made by its donor.

Gay Bungalow Caps

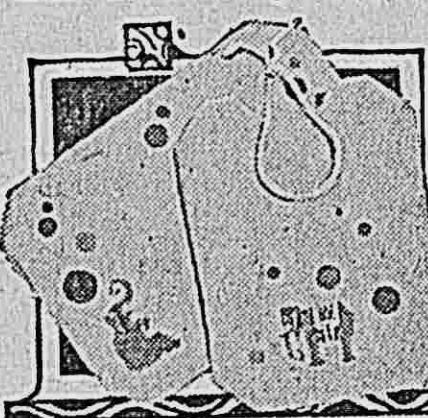

Here is something new in breakfast caps. It is made of gray cretonne and is buttoned up the back so that it may be easily washed and ironed. It is bound with a plain color in chambray and has a narrow band of this material about it. The brim portion may be turned up or down and is shown here turned up at one side and down on the other.

Gifts for Gay Hours

Christmas never brought lovelier remembrances to fair women than the picturesque hair ornaments for their gay hours which this season presents. There are many of them made of ribbon, beads, flowers or mock jewels in headbands, and finished with a feather or blossom or other ornament. The sparkling piece pictured is merely a fillet of rhinestones that encircles the head and supports a small poinsettia flower at the left with a few sparkling rhinestones scattered on its leaves.

Bib and Tray Cloth

Balloons, in bright colors, and an angular elephant decorate the ample bib and tray cloth to match, made of oilcloth, as pictured above. They will afford the youngest member of the family much joy and his mother much peace of mind at the dinner table. Therefore the donor of this gift will be twice blessed and long remembered. The noddled oilcloth is cream colored and the bib is bound at the neck with white tape which is extended into ties.

Fairy Powder Puff

Little celluloid kewpies which may be bought everywhere have been used in many ingenious ways for Christmas gifts. Here is one dressed up like a fairy bride with ruffles of chiffon bound with narrow satin ribbon for a skirt and her head adorned with a braided wreath and veil. She stands in a small bag stuffed with cotton and gathered about her feet and it has a cloth powder puff sewed to it that rests in a glass bowl.

OLDEST GHOST ABOUT TO STIR

Every Twelve Years Since Spanish Invasion Body of Murdered Priest Appears.

WON'T STAY INTERRED

Spaniard Killed by Indians in New Mexico Who Feared He Would Betray Them to Spanish Invaders.

Isleta, N. M.—Here reposes at present the oldest and most persistent ghost in America. This might be inscribed in the little adobe church here.

Long ago, at the time of the first Spanish invasions of southwestern America, a Spanish friar was captured by the Indians. Although kept as a prisoner for a time, he later won their confidence and as years went by was admitted to their peculiar religious and political circles.

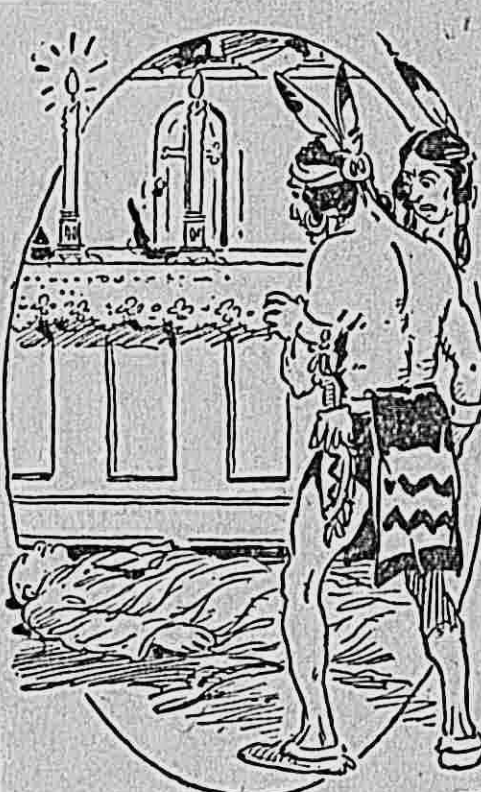

At last the rumor reached the tribe of the advance of Coronado in search of treasure. The Indians feared treachery on the part of their Spanish friend and one night he was stabbed to death by one of the more skeptical members of the tribe. The medicine men were horrified at the crime, for not only had they come to respect the Spaniard's Christian teachings, but had made him a participant in their own religion. And above all, they knew what might be expected of enraged Spaniards if they should discover the crime.

Buried Near Altar.

The priest's body was hastily wrapped in a sheet and without any prayer or ceremony buried deep in front of the altar in the little Christian church in Isleta.

Coronado's men never learned of the crime, but a few years later a peculiar mound appeared in front of the altar in the little church. The horrified natives observed the mound was exactly the length and width of a man's body. Soon the hard earth floor cracked and one morning, just 12 years after the burial of the priest, his body was discovered lying face upward above the spot where he had been buried.

On examination it was found that the body was soft, as though the priest had been dead but a few days, and the wound in his back was clothed with fresh blood. There seemed to be nothing to do but to bury him again. This they did and were careful to press the earth down very firmly.

It was no use. The crack reappeared and widened and at the end of another 12 years they found him lying there again. And as before the body showed no sign of decomposition.

Ghost Appeared.

This went on every 12 years until 1912. Then when, according to habit, the ghost appeared, the old men called a council. The governor was sent for, as well as the priest of the parish and the archbishop of Santa Fe and a visiting cardinal from Rome. They all came and a paper was signed to the effect that they had seen the body. Again it was buried, but this time in a heavy oak casket, and over the grave, and even over the whole floor of the church, was laid and nailed a heavy plank floor.

Plank floors are not common in little adobe churches in this region, and this is the explanation of the most truthful man in Isleta. But now, plainly visible, there is a bulge in the planking the size of a man's body and the nails in the floor protrude! Apparently the ghost is trying to come again to Isleta, and the townspeople are looking forward apprehensively to 1924.

Release Wounded Eagle.

Huntington, Pa.—An eagle, wounded seven weeks ago near here, has just been released from the highest peak of the Allegheny mountains. The cost of its food was the reason for giving it its liberty, the bird eating three pounds of beefsteak daily.

The bird, since it was hurt, has been kept in a cage and cared for by game wardens. The eagle was wounded by a farmer who was "tired of seeing it hanging around his farm."

DO YOUR TOES SPREAD OUT?

Mary E. Bayley, R. N., Tells What, in an Expert's Opinion, the Feet Should Be Like.

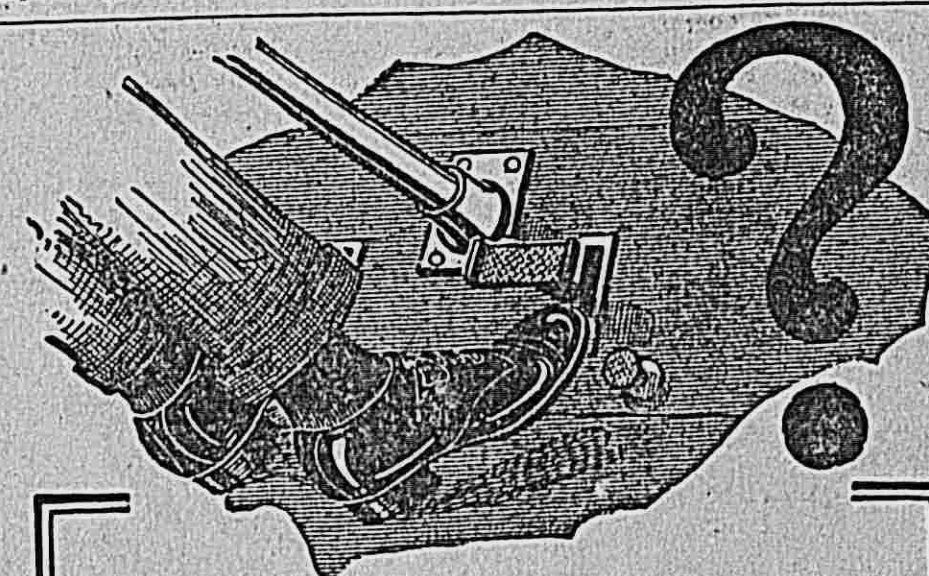

Does the great toe of your foot (or the big toes of both feet) continue in a straight line from the heel? And do your other toes spread apart? If this condition exists you have good understanding feet, according to Mary E. Bayley, R. N., who tells in the Delinquent what feet should be like. Her article has been approved by Dr. Virgil P. Gilbey, surgeon in chief of the Hospital for the Relief of the Ruptured and Crippled, New York, and therefore bears the stamp of authority.

Too much care cannot be taken of the feet, Miss Bayley continues, as they are the keystone to correct body position and have much to do with one's health. Particular attention should be paid to shoe fitting between the ages of nine and fourteen, since this is the period of growth and expansion. Socks, too, come in for discussion, as tight-fitting ones compress the toes and interfere with the circulation.

At the November meeting of the Kenosha county board of supervisors the proposal will come up to complete the paving on the Geneva road from the end of the present concrete to the west limits of Kenosha county. This will mean the construction of some eight miles of road eighteen feet in width.

It is said that the proposed plan to build the road will not meet with serious opposition in the various county towns which must pay a portion of the cost of construction. Most of this portion will fall upon the towns of Salem and Wheatland. The suggestion has been made that the road can be built at a cost of twenty-five thousand dollars a mile but the officials who have made an investigation are of the opinion that the cost of the eight miles of road will be in the neighborhood of three hundred thousand dollars. A portion of this cost would be provided by state and federal aid.

Methodist Episcopal Church News

Last Sunday was a good day. The Sunday school attendance was good and the offering was large. There was close study of the deep spiritual realities, which alone can make a Sunday school successful.

It was the first Sunday of the five-year period of remands of credits for perfect attendance. The Cross and Crown system has been installed again. Every member of the school will now be a candidate for the higher degrees of credits for the five-year period and no one will miss Sunday school unless too sick to be out of the house.

All teachers and scholars must work hard this week to get new ones enrolled in every class that the new ones shall have an equal chance with the former scholars at the credits.

The preaching service Sunday morning was enriched with an unusually high grade vocal number by Miss Mary Tiffany. The sermon stressed the need of all people for a deeper religious life, and emphasized the fact that each one can actually reach a higher state of religious experience and life immediately by praying with intense earnestness for it. "Ask, and it shall be given you," was the text, and the speaker pointed out that these were the words of Christ Himself and were given to us for the specific purpose of assuring us that we can get the higher and deeper religious power we need to keep us good and kind and sweet in all circumstances and to make us strong for the great work of bringing others to Christ.

Prayer meeting now meets 7:30 p. m., Wednesday.

The evening service took up the first commandment: "Thou shalt have no other Gods before men." It was shown that the way men ever came to work up imaginary Gods for themselves was as follows:

1. They knew that the real and living God was holy and demanded righteousness of them.
 2. Some men wanted to do things which they knew were wrong and which God would not approve.
 3. Hence they turned away from God, forsook Him and followed their own ways.
 4. But they found their own hearts cried out constantly for something in the way of religion, their neighbors had religion, and so they must have something for religion.
 5. They therefore trumped up religions which would serve as substitutes for real religion. In every case, they are such as will let men go in their own evil ways, which means that they are religious with religion left out. For religion is right relation with the real and living God. There is no other real religion. All else is false substitute. And no system which permits men to go on in sin can have any thing to do with the living God. Hence, any system which does not demand perfect righteousness of its followers can not possibly be a religion in the proper sense of that word.
- A vigorous warning was sounded to the effect that only one who persists in any thing which he believes to be wrong is thereby rejecting God's control in his life, turning down the holy God, and is thus taking the first step toward becoming a pagan, since that is the way all paganism have begun. The Epworth League had a lively meeting, hearing from some of the members who had returned from the district convention in Chicago. Eighteen Antioch leaguers were at the convention, which was one of the best showings in the district, considering distance and everything. The attendance at the league is growing.

Last Sunday saw a good attendance at the Sunday school and preaching service at Hickory. A new interest is awakening there.

Grass Lake School

Mr. and Mrs. L. Rothers Sr., expect to spend the winter in Florida.

The following poem was written by one of our seventh grade girls:

NOVEMBER

When cold November sends its chilly blast,

She sets the leaves a whirling fast.

The harder it blows

The colder it grows

The time is come for winter snows.

The sun struggles to get out,

But dark clouds all about

Seem to say "You have had enough of play."

So now we are come to stay.

Well, the wind sent her chilly blast

The leaves went whirling fast

The harder the wind did blow

Faster came the beautiful snow.

Thanksgiving day is here

But the turkeys I very much fear

Are not as happy as we.

The puddings, pies and cakes,

Took a real long time to make,

But I guess you can see we

Are going to have company.

At last it is time to eat.

Umm, I'll have two helpings of meat,

'Tis a day I'll never forget

When all that company met.

Now it is time to give thanks you see

And then take leave

Of our happy company.

Marie Rothers.

Are You Nervous? Sleepless? Weak?

Health is Your Most Valuable Asset
Here is How to Take Care of It

Bloomington, Ill.—"During the time I was bringing up my family I depended entirely on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to keep me in good health, and I had very little need of any other medicine. It is the best medicine a weak woman can take to build up her nervous system when run-down or suffering with weakness."

"For liver trouble or disordered stomach, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are excellent; they regulate the system in a very mild but effective manner."—Mrs. Margaret Reese, 1212 W. Mulberry St.

Your neighborhood druggist can supply you with all Dr. Pierce's famous Family Remedies—tablets or liquid.

The Apprentice.
Lord Babbington was instructing the new colored servant in his duties, adding: "Now, Zeke, when I ring for you, you must answer by saying, 'My lord, what will you have?'"

A few hours afterward, having occasion to summon the servant, his lordship was astonished with the following:

"My Gawd, what does you want now?"—Wayside Tales.

He Knew "Long Boy."
Little Billy, from the West, was with his parents on an eastern tour. Among the places they visited was the home of "Longfellow" in the West. Billy's sister asked their mother, "Before she could answer, Billy said: 'Aw, he wrote "Good-by Maw, good-by pa, good-by mule with yer old he-baw!"'"

"That's what's got my goat," Costigan admitted grimly. "He said he'd be back in an hour, but he ain't showed up since, nor sent any word. I don't want to shove my nose into your affairs, but I'm gettin' a little nervous 'bout George, that's a fact."

Somehow the fellow gave me the impression of being square—honest according to his lights—and intensely loyal to his friends. Of course, I could not inform him as to the whole story, but it might be of benefit to give him some inkling of the situation.

"There's no harm, so far as I can see, in telling you a part of the plan, Mr. Costigan," I replied slowly, endeavoring to guard my words carefully. "I know Harris has every confidence in you, so I'll take a chance. We're both on to a million-dollar pot—easy money, it looks like."

"The hell! That's some boodle!" excitedly leaning forward. "I'll not let it go, or how the two of us run together on the trail, and agreed to split the pot. That's our business, you'll admit."

"Sure; what was it? A bank job?" "Better than that—South American revolution fund; coin sent over here from London to pay for arms, and maybe a murder or so. It is all in one bundle, and what we need to do is get our hands on it. We know where the stuff is, but we're still scouting around for a chance to grab it; it's locked up yet."

"I see. Ain't been handed over to the gink who's got to pay it out. That's what George is a-train' out now, I suppose?" "No doubt that is what he started after this morning—shadowing the fellows to whom it was to be paid. What gets me is, why he doesn't return—the guy is dead."

"Judas Priest! How do you know that? What's happened?" "Why, it's in all the papers; he was murdered last night over in Jersey City—stabbed through the back in an automobile. You saw it, didn't you?"

"H—I! That guy? He was a Chilean, or something. Yer don't think that maybe George bumped him off, do yer?" "No; I know he didn't; Harris was with me all last evening."

"And you haven't any notion who did?" "I shook my head negatively. Costigan sat for some moments, his chin cupped in his huge fist, his pipe extinguished and his forehead creased in thought. Then he looked up suddenly, a strange light in his eyes.

"Say, Daly," he asked in a hoarse whisper, "do you know if there was a Russian Jew mixed up in this affair anywhere?"

money, and naturally reached out for it. He was the first one to get onto this particular game. They were using him, this Ohlman gang, to pull that's how he tumbled to this bunch of money floating about, begging somebody to pick it up. He had wormed himself inside, and knew it was coming. But he didn't have nerve enough to tackle the game alone. He wanted somebody else to run all the risk, and then turn over his share. Do you get it now?"

"Sure; he blew the thing to Harris."

"In a way—yes. He sent for him to come back from England, but without explaining just what his graft was. On the way over Harris picked up another end of the same net, and went after it himself. He wasn't under any obligation to Waldron, and preferred to play his hand alone."

"And the Russian has found that out, and now he butts in."

"That's the way I'd read the cards, Costigan."

He sat silent a long while, and I lit a cigar and watched him, his great hands closing and unclosing, as he slowly reviewed the situation.

"Say, this guy what was bumped off—did; whoever did it, get anything?" "His pockets were rifled, the papers say—all but a little change."

"Are you sure this fellow Alva didn't have that bunch of money along with him?" "No! I'm not sure, of course, but Harris had been shadowing him for a month. Still, come to think, Alva was with Krantz the same night. He might have touched him."

"With who?" "Krantz—Adolph Krantz—the banker. Kulb, Krantz and Company, over in Wall street," I explained. "Is he the same guy that 'K' stands for in the letter?"

"No doubt. He and Harris had an interview at 247 Le Comptre street."

"Le Comptre, hey! I wonder who lives there?" "Well, I can tell you—it's Ivan Waldron."

His fist came crashing down onto the arm of his chair. "H—I! That's all clear enough then. He and George are up to some deal."

CHAPTER VIII.
A Friend at the McAlpin—The Dagger Hatpin.

His unexpected question startled me. In a way it was an odd echo of the vague suspicion which had been pursuing me ever since the early afternoon. Somewhere there was a mysterious hand operating—but whose hand?

"A Russian Jew?" I questioned. "Why should you ask that?" "Well, I'll tell you. Maybe it don't amount to nothin' an' then again it might give us the right steer. A fellow they call 'Sly Levy'—he's a cheap thief, a dip mostly—blew in yere last night with a note for Harris. He left it with one o' the night barkeeps, an' it seemed ter be in a h—l of a hurry ter have it delivered. The d—d thing was sealed, but not stamped, an' there wa'n't no address on it either. So I didn't think it was no penitentiary sentence to pry it open, usin' a bit of steam to loosen up the flap. But I ain't find much, only two lines spelled out in print letters. 'Where you met I, K, eight tomorrow. Don't fail; I'm important. I W.' That was every d—n word. Do you make anything of that?"

"Yes, I do," I said heartily. "It's part of this job. I'll explain after a bit. What did you do then?" "Sealed it up, an' give it back to Joe. I didn't see no harm in it. Do you happen to know who this 'I W.' stands for?"

"I can make a mighty good guess, Costigan—a Russian Jew, all right; Ivan Waldron."

The scowl on his face remained fixed; evidently the name was unknown.

"Don't know the fellow? Likely enough not; he doesn't operate in your line, but he is a crook just the same. I never saw him myself, but have heard about him for a long while—never anything good. He's an agitator, an anarchist, a revolutionary orator; one of those bugs who fight society and government, and hate everybody but themselves, a loud-mouthed nuisance."

Costigan's mouth was open. "Say," he interrupted, "what's that kind of guy got to do with George Harris?" "He's got this to do with him—he's out after the coin. He saw some easy parlor of the McAlpin, on the mezzanine floor—a friend wishes to see you."

"But really, I do not recognize your voice."

"Which is not altogether strange, as I am only the clerk on this floor. I am making this request in behalf of a guest."

"A man or a woman, may I ask?" She laughed good-humoredly. "Really, I am not at liberty to say. You will come?"

"Yes, of course."

Before I had really finished my sentence the connection had been severed. However, there was no doubt now in my mind but that it was Harris. I took the subway and was at the entrance within twenty minutes, eager to learn what had actually transpired during the past twelve hours. Without using the elevator I passed up the marble stairs to the mezzanine floor, pausing in uncertainty at the top to look about in search of some familiar face. A number of people were congregated about the railed opening looking down into the lobby, while others were scattered around on convenient divans, or at small writing desks.

From the recesses of the ladies' room at the left came the strains of piano music, and the sound of a soprano voice singing. The song ceased to be clapping of hands. The faces I was able to distinguish were all strange and I moved forward in search.

I had attained the opposite side of the room before I came to a halt, suddenly arrested by a vision as startling as unexpected. Leaning over the rail, gazing intently down on the jostling crowd to the lobby below, apparently unconscious of all else, was Marie Gessier. There could be no doubt; I stood motionless, looking at her intently, satisfying myself that I could not be deceived. No. It was certainly the same girl I had talked with the evening before, dressed more elaborately, changed somewhat in appearance by a more careful toilet, yet assuredly the same. She must have felt the intensity of my stare and thus sensed my presence, for she suddenly looked about with a little start, saw me instantly and arose to her feet. There was a second of hesitation, barely perceptible, before she ventured a step forward, her lips smiling, her gloved hand held out.

"You were very nice to come," she exclaimed quietly. "Especially in response to so ungracious a message of invitation."

"It was you then who sent for me?" "Of course. Did you imagine some one else?"

"I came rather blindly," I admitted, unwilling to mention Harris. "Your messenger refused to satisfy my curiosity even to the extent of telling the sex of the one calling."

She laughed, quite at her ease now, and seemingly amused. "I confess I feared you might hesitate to respond if you knew what awaited you."

"No fear of that."

"But I didn't know," her voice more earnest, her eyes on my face questioningly. "You have not thought very well of me, have you? Let us go over there in the corner, where we can talk without being overheard—there are two vacant chairs."

We reached there and seated ourselves in silence. I felt the necessity of restraint, the desire to permit her to lead the conversation in whatever direction she thought best. She appeared younger in the bright light, her face even more attractive than in my memory.

"You are thoroughly puzzled, are you not?" she asked gayly. "Well, you know, I last night. It is only right I should pay you back in your own coin; that is perfectly fair, I am sure. Now I know who you are, but I am still an enigma. You accepted me on blind faith before; I wonder if you are willing to do it again?"

"I can hardly refuse."

"Answered like a gentleman. But suppose I tell you nothing and yet ask of you a dangerous service! Would you risk your life for me, not even asking who I am or why I make the request?"

There was a grave earnestness to the voice, an entreaty in the eyes not to be ignored. This was no idle question to be thrust aside with a smile. "I believe I can make the pledge—to you," I replied soberly. "It is very unusual, but—"

"But you are Philip Severn," she interrupted, with an expressive gesture. "Had you not been I would have never asked."

"It is very nice of you to put it in that way, I am sure, but how do you chance to know that I am Philip Severn?"

"Suppose I insist that could not be secret? Yet surely you could not believe I would be here with you, unless I knew? You must have faith in me, in spite of all."

"Undoubtedly I do. I hardly hold it a reasonable faith, however. More, it is a certain amount of curiosity should be gratified, especially when a young lady asks unquestioning devotion to an unknown cause. You admit that?" (TO BE CONTINUED.)

"BREAD" OF STARVING RUSSIA

Called "Lebeda," the Stuff is Made of Leaves and Grass, Boiled and Dried.

A peasant in the government of Samara (soviet Russia) told me of how they make lebeda bread. Here is the story: "In our village they take some linen leaves and grass, chop them up to the size of a flea, and then boll the mixture. After the water has boiled, they squeeze it out and put the stuff again into boiling water. Then they let the water run off through a sieve, and keep the mass until it is dry. After that they grind it fine and add one-third flour."

"The bread you get is green in color and indigestible. And when there is no flour, they just bake the ground mixture as it is. It does not taste very badly; but after a man eats it for a while he swells up and gets worms in his stomach, and soon after that he dies."—Moscow Pravda.

Worry in Store.
Harold Lloyd is telling the story of an old darkey "extra" who took two or three days to moan and groan his way through the income tax paper. "An' now Ah got more worry," he announced after he had dotted the last "i" and crossed the final "t." "What's wrong now?" asked Harold. "Now," was the answer, "now befo' Ah can pay mah taxes Ah got to hunt all 'round an' locate the federal taxidermist's office."—Philadelphia Ledger.

This little bit of advice may help you regain your Health, Strength and Vitality

Thousands of people suffer from nervousness. They are run down and miserable without knowing the reason why.

They do not stop to think that much of their trouble may be caused by drinking tea and coffee which contain the drugs, thein and caffeine. When you over-stimulate the system for any period of time, the result may be nervousness with its many accompanying ills. You may fail to sleep properly and your sleep does not refresh you as it should.

Postum, made from scientifically roasted cereals, will help you to overcome all these conditions. For it contains only healthful substances, instead of drugs, as are found in tea and coffee.

Postum helps build sound nerve structure, by letting you get sound, restful sleep.

In flavor, Postum is much like high-grade coffee. In fact there are many people who prefer Postum for its savory flavor alone.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Serve this rich, fragrant beverage for the family. See how the children will like it, and how much better everybody will sleep at night.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.
